Does StoreDot manufacture batteries in China?

Currently, StoreDot licenses technology to its manufacturing partner EVE Energy (300014.SZ) to produce batteries in China and ship to customers in China and Korea. This partnership would provide it with a manufacturing partner closer to customers in Europe, Chief Executive Doron Myersdorf said to Reuters.

How do I know if my Shoto battery is bad?

The first thing you must check is whether you have the 15 cell or 16 cell Shoto. They make both (and do not seem to indicate this anywhere on the battery) and the charging parameters between the two would be very different. The only way I know of that it could be checked would be plugging a laptop in and reading the BMS output.
